A Shelter for Amnesic Relatives
Ammon Ngakuru
Saturday 10 June – Saturday 1 July

Artist talk | Saturday 10 June, 12noon

A Shelter for Amnesic Relatives considers the safe room, a space common in American survivalist culture and online discourse. As a thoroughly private form of shelter, the safe room is meant as a refuge from a future or perpetually imminent external threat or catastrophe—a space intentionally closed off from the outside world; a means of escape.

Viewed at a distance, from a location that has its own complex history of colonial occupation, the American Survivalist obsession (with some forthcoming and unknown danger) might be read as an attempt at avoiding an acknowledgment of history, a turning inward and away from both past and present. With this in mind, A Shelter for Amnesic Relatives asks whether this over-precaution might read as a manifestation of colonial or class guilt and an attempt at preparing oneself for some act of future revenge, imagined as an abstract apocalypse. The works presented operate as an attempt to mark the inside and outside, through the physical delineation of space and through the symbolic use of images and materials related to survivalist strategy.

Ammon Ngakuru is an artist living and working in Tāmaki Makaurau, Auckland. Considering ideas of distance, place and (un)belonging, he often utilises both personal and public archival information as a guide in the production of installation based works. Recent group projects include: Driving from the nearest city, the roads are gradually smaller, stonier, less well kept, with Charlotte Drayton for the Stazione Di Topolò, Italy (2016); Since 1984 - He aha te ahurea-rua?, ST Paul Street Gallery (2015).

A Shelter for Amnesic Relatives is proudly and generously supported by Ōtepoti Puaka Matariki Festival.
A Shelter for Amnesic Relatives
Ammon Ngakuru
Saturday 10 June – Saturday 1 July

Works List (all 2017)

Front Gallery (Clockwise from left of back entrance)

It’s choice not chance that determines our destiny, digital print and boot polish on canvas

Prepare for the Future, digital print and boot polish on canvas

Every new beginning comes from some other beginning’s end, digital print and boot polish on canvas

The fear of suffering is far worse than the suffering itself, digital print and boot polish on canvas

What is meant to be will always find its way, digital print and boot polish on canvas

Just Believe, digital print and boot polish on canvas

Second Gallery

Panic room or hidden safe with hidden door hatch, single channel HD video (8:56)